NEW QUESTION: 3

Which of the following correctly describe the two topology deployment modes of SteelHead SaaS? (Select two.)

- A. In backhaul mode the cloud-optimized traffic is encapsulated at the data center but the SSL optimization starts at the branch.
- B. In direct mode, the cloud optimized traffic is encapsulated at the branch-side SteelHead appliance.
- C. Direct mode cannot be used if the internet traffic exit points is centralized at the customer data center and not available from the branch.
- D. Backhaul mode allows to optimize traffic to the cloud from the data center without the need of a branch SteelHead.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Explanation

A: In direct mode, the ESH appliance encapsulates the traffic and sends it directly to a server in the Akamai (Branch Office xample) network. Akamai SureRoute optimization technology ensures that the traffic is forwarded through the Akamai network along the fastest path toward its destination at the data center hosting the SaaS application.

C: Back-hauled Internet Deployment

In this topology, the branch does not have its own connection to the Internet. All traffic directed to the Internet is back-hauled over a private WAN or VPN to the organization's data center.

Although the DCSH encapsulates the traffic, it plays no role in the SSL optimization process. SSL optimization still takes place between the ESH appliance and the ACSH. Ensure that you establish the SSL peering trust between them.

- A. Option A
- B. Option C
- C. Option D
- D. Option B

Answer: B

Explanation:

A forwarder is a Domain Name System (DNS) server on a network that forwards DNS queries for external DNS names to DNS servers outside that network. You can also forward queries according to specific domain names using conditional forwarders. You designate a DNS server on a network as a forwarder by configuring the other DNS servers in the network to forward the queries that they cannot resolve locally to that DNS server. By using a forwarder, you can manage name resolution for names outside your network, such as names on the Internet, and improve the efficiency of name resolution for the computers in your network.
